Vietnam free-trade agreement approved despite human rights concerns

The EU is expanding the World's largest free-trade-area, with the European Parliament voting in favor of an FTA with Vietnam. The aim of the agreement is to boost bilateral trade by around 50 percent compared with the current levels. Currently, the EU exports goods and services worth almost €14 billion to Vietnam. The country is the second-largest trading partner of the EU in the ASEAN bloc, after Singapore.

Government: UK will not implement EU Copyright Directive

In light of Brexit, the United Kingdom has decided not to implement the controversial Copyright Directive, that has been the subject of intense discussions in the last few years. The UK was among 19 nations that initially supported the new directive. It covers how “online content-sharing services” should deal with copyright-protected content.
